The Problem

Quote sent Monday. Then nothing.

You spent two evenings on a ₹3.4 lakh kitchen quote. The client went quiet. Following up feels pushy, so you don't, and three weeks later they chose someone who did.

Google Sheets

Quotes

	Client	Amount	Sent	Follow-up
1	Mehta Residence	₹3,40,000	12 Oct	none
2	Sharma Office	₹1,85,000	8 Oct	none
3	Rao Villa	₹6,10,000	1 Oct	one, by call
4	Gupta Clinic	₹92,000	14 Oct	none

The Workflow

Quote Follow-up with Approval

Every box below is a node in the free workflow.

Step 1

Find quotes going cold

Every morning n8n reads your Quotes sheet: day 3 with no nudge, day 7 with one, day 14 with two. Replied, won and lost quotes are skipped, and nothing is nudged twice in a day.

- [x] Day 3, no nudge: nudge 1
- [x] Day 7, one nudge: nudge 2
- [x] Day 14: ask you won or lost
- [x] Replied / won / lost: skipped

N8N NODES

Every morning 11 AM

Read open quotes

Due for a nudge?

Step 2

Did they reply? Then it stops n8n opens the Gmail thread of the quote. If the client wrote back, nudges stop, the row says Replied and you get a Slack ping with their message.

Sharma Office replied on Q-1187 (₹1,85,000): "Can we start with just the conference room?" Nudges stopped, over to you.

- Check for client reply
- Client replied?
- Tell owner: client replied
- Mark as replied

Step 3

Claude drafts, you approve

Claude writes a short nudge from the project and your call notes: a check-in on day 3, something useful on day 7. You see it in Slack and tap Send or Skip.

Step 4

Sent in the thread, tracked

Approved nudges go out as a reply in the quote thread. The sheet counts nudges. On day 14 you pick Won, Lost or Still alive in Slack, so your win rate is real.

What Changes

Before and after the workflow

BEFORE

- Quotes left to go cold
- Follow-ups feel pushy
- No idea of win rate

AFTER

- Nudged on day 3 and 7
- Every nudge approved by you
- Won and lost tracked

STAYS HUMAN

Every nudge waits for your Send in Slack, and the moment a client replies, the nudges stop.
