The Problem

Retyped. Nobody checked.

6:40 PM: a PO PDF from a buyer for 5,000 cartons at ₹12.50. Your quote said ₹14. The supervisor types it into the production sheet as it is. You find out at invoicing.

The Workflow

Purchase Order Reader

Every box below is a node in the free workflow.

Step 1

Catch every PO email

n8n watches Gmail for emails with a PDF attached and words like PO or purchase order. It keeps only the PDFs and skips any it has read before.

Step 2

Claude reads the PDF

n8n pulls the text out of the PDF and Claude fills fixed fields: PO number, buyer, GSTIN, delivery date, address, payment terms, and every line with qty, rate and amount.

Step 3

Checked against your quote

A Code node checks every line against your quoted rate, re-does qty x rate and the totals, checks the GSTIN format, and compares the delivery date with your lead time.

- ✓ Qty x rate = amount: OK
- ✓ Totals and GST add up: OK
- ✓ GSTIN format: OK
- ✗ Rate ₹12.50, quoted ₹14.00: MISMATCH
- ✗ Deliver by 18 Nov, lead time says 24 Nov: TOO SOON

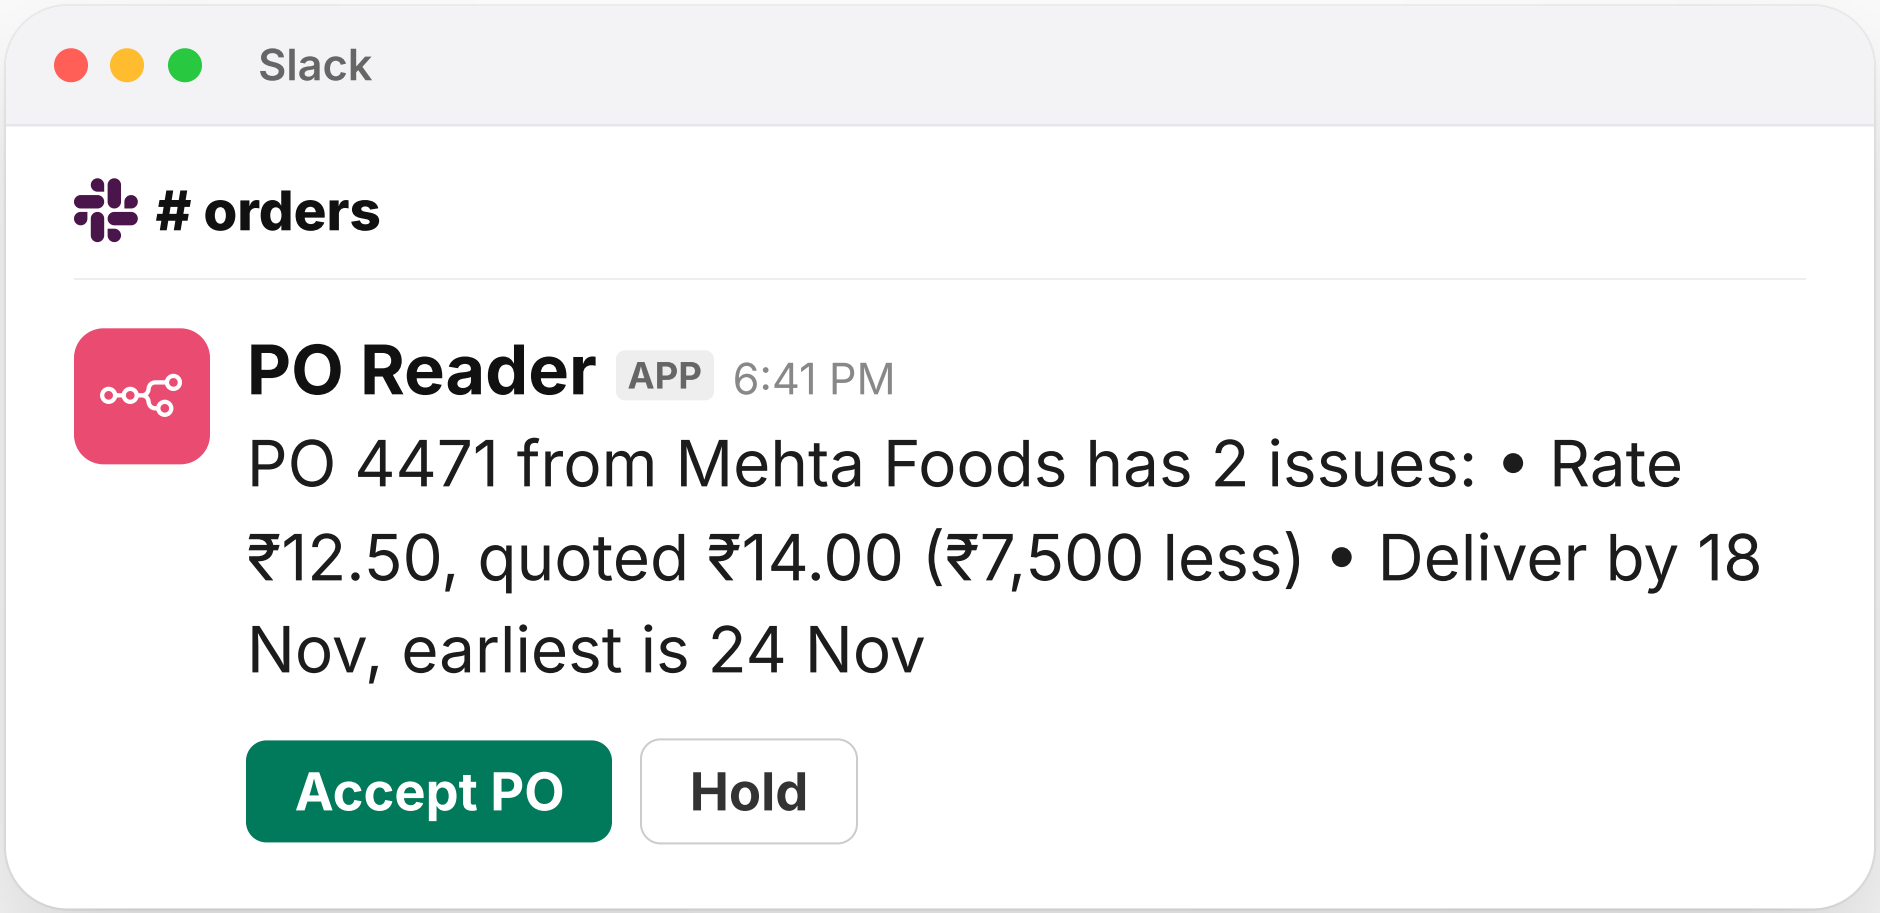

caught before production

N8N NODES `Check against quote` `Any mismatch?`

Step 4

Mismatches wait for you

Any mismatch goes to Slack with the exact lines. Accept puts it into production anyway. Hold logs it as On hold so you can call the buyer first.

Step 5

Into the production sheet

Clean POs go straight in, one row per line with delivery date. The production channel gets a heads-up and a reply to the buyer waits as a Gmail draft for you to send.

Google Sheets

	PO	Item	Qty	Deliver by
1	0912	Spice pouch 250g	20,000	22 Nov
2	0912	Master carton	400	22 Nov
3	4471	5-ply carton	5,000	24 Nov

What Changes

Before and after the workflow

BEFORE

- Every PO retyped by hand
- Rates checked at invoicing
- Rush dates found too late

AFTER

- PO lines in the sheet in a minute
- Wrong rates flagged the same evening
- Impossible dates caught upfront

STAYS HUMAN

A PO with a mismatch never enters production until you tap Accept, and the buyer reply stays a draft.
